WHY APPRAISE YOUR ART

If you have art that you know is valuable, make sure you get it appraised and insured. If you don't and it's lost in a fire or another disaster, you'll have to deal with the loss of a valuable piece of work. Take these steps to insure your artwork.

Things You'll Need

Documentation photos
Appraisal
Sales receipts

1. Maintain an inventory of your artwork.
2. Review the value of your artwork on a regular basis and adjust the amount of insurance you carry. Paying for a reappraisal will pay dividends if the artwork is damaged or stolen.
3. Use the appraisal as a guide when negotiating the value of your art with your insurer. The agreed value is the most that the company will pay out when you file a claim.
4. IZEN MILLER GALLERY can help you appraise, document and sell your fine art.

For over 30 years, Deanna Izen Miller has been contemporary art's most luxuriant supporter, fan, devotee, and has represented over forty artists, from Lita Albuquerque to Andy Warhol.

An astute authority on contemporary art, Deanna is passionate about the artists, understanding of the buyers' needs, and has great appreciation for all aspects of the contemporary art world.

Deanna's first gallery was in Venice, CA. Being in the center of that highly charged modern art environment, Deanna invited artists, as well as collectors, to speak in her gallery which brought many art appreciators to further learn and enjoy the contemporary art scene. She continues gathering artists, collectors, and appreciators to share the joy of discovering new and different art venues.

Deanna Izen Miller currently resides in Palm Desert, CA and was recently featured in the Palm Springs Fine Art Fair.
